

Clay Modelling Competition

All forms of art are important for children to experience, yet it does seem that the long-lasting nature of the children's finished clay piece adds a special value for them. Simply the act of molding clay in one's hands whether you're a child or an adult can be very calming and therapeutic. Clay is a unique art medium because it is highly responsive to touch and gives the students the confidence to attempt any project which opens the door to greater self-expression and imagination. Clay also allows a child to learn to repair mistakes, and therefore the ability to readily fix mistakes, gives the child a sense of control over their project's success which improves self-esteem and self-expression as they realize that mistakes aren't going to stop their progress.

Keeping this in mind we have shared the clay experience in our clay modelling programs at our school with the belief that clay is an essential element for nurturing children's growth.

A clay modelling competition was held for classes III to VIII by the students of class VII A. Two children were chosen as judges for each class wherein they judged the clay models and chose the winners. An award ceremony was held and the winners were awarded certificates by the students.

The result is as follows:
